BUROPEAN NEWS. The Threatened Attack upon the Sumter. thampton (Jan. 19) Correspondence of the Lendon Post.

VOL. VI.-NO. 830.1

It is generally expected that the Federal wer-sloop Tunearors a visit here will now be very limited. The objection of her coming here, for the purpose of capturing the Confederate steamer Nashville, and the probability of an engagement in our waters, has been entirely prevented by the course which the government has adopted. Captain Craven, and the commander of the Tuscarora, has been officially intermed that he will not be allowed to make any hostile movements, that our neutrality of the port will be strictly enforced, and should the Nashville take her departure first, the Tuscarora will not be permitted to leave her moorings until twenty-four hours afterwards. Captain Craven has, it is said, intimated to Captain Patey, the Admirality agent here, his intentions to abide by the orders of the government; and the same instructions have been communicated to Captain Pegram with regard to the Nashville, who has likewise assented to the same. . To prevent any attempt on the part of he Tuscarora to evade the demands made by the government, the Dountless, which lies off Netley Abbey, about three miles lower down the river, has been fully manned and equipped. She has orders to keep steam up, and it is brought to by a spring cable, ready to prevent any act of aggression on the part of the Federal vessel. It is also arranged that, should necessity require it, the Dauntlesson signal the Web nior, which vessel is lying off Osborne with her fires banked up. A gunboar has also been ordered here from Portsmouth. It is not supposed now that there will be any more visits to the docks by the crew of the Tuscarora, or of a continuance of the secret session, outsiders are busy arranging excitement which has prevailed here during the last few days.

It is said that the Tuscarera is very badly built, that her guns are too large for a vessel of her size and class, there not being room to work them properly. She is very leaky, and the men are obliged to be kept at the pumps; and it is the opinion to form an opinion, that she will not be able to stand the shock from such heavy metal as she carries.

Virginia Bonds in Europe.

The London Times of the 5th ult. savs : It had been reported that the coupons of the dividend due on the 1st instant on the State of Virginia five per cent. bonds had been returned by Mesers. Baring with the answer, "No advice to pay." On Saturday last, however, the requisite remittance had been received, and the payment will be made in the usual way. The State of Virginia has always maintained her credit. and, looking at the manner in which the horrors of the civil war are concentrated upon her soil, and the difficulties she experiences in effecting communication with Europe, her present punctuallity deserves especial record.

BRUTAL INHUMANITY. - Th casee of Mr. Morgan, brother of Col. Chas. S. Morgan, one of our most esteemed and respected citizens, who was torn from his home in Western Virginia and carried prisoner to Columbus, where he died, has naturally excited profound sympathy in every humane heart. He was a prominent and influen-tial citizens of this State, and for no other crime than allegiance to his 'native Commonweith was dragged off to the cattle pen at Columbus, and his dead body actually sent home without the common decency of a coffin, covered only by his person clothes and his feet bere. In this condition he was delivered from the care to his mourning friends, amongst the 'taunts and jeers of the Yankee soldiery! How long shall these brutal wretches trample with impunity on all that is sacred in humanity and decent in civilization!

FROM COLUMBUS. - Our last reports from above are to the effect that the Federals are collecting in strong force at Cairo, and that as soon they can get 80,000 or 100. 000 they intend to make their long talked of forward movement upon Columbus and New Madrid, by both land and water. They had at Cairo, at last accounts, 60,000 troops and 38 morter boats. - N. O. Bulletin. Feb. 1

Texas at this time appears to be the land of plenty and cheap living. A letter to the Huntaville Advocate, from Kaufman county, says : "There has been plenty of pro visions raised the past season to last a year or two, such as corn, wheat, pork and beef. We Texans are fattening on the result the blockade produces. Provisions are plenty and cheap ; corn, 50c.; beef, 21 to 3c.; wheat, 75c.; flour, 21 to 3c.: pork, 5 to 6c. Living remote from market as we do, we are less dependent upon it than those who live immediately at market .-We have learnt to do without things we cannot get conveniently." A government agent there had orders to buy 13,000 beeves for our troops. The total indebtedness of the peop the insurrectionary States, says the Cincinnati Commercial, to the loyal States, which has been repudiated by our Southern brethren, is estimated at three hundred

A Fight on the Opposite side of th From the Savannah News, 4th inst.]

Early yesterday morning heavy firing was heard from the Carolina side of the river in the direction of Red Bluff. From the Battery and the balconies of the stores on the Bay the smoke of the guns could be distinctly seen with the naked eye, and by timing it was discovered that the reports reached us in thirty-five seconds after the discharge of the gun, showing the distance from the city to be about seven and a half miles. The firing continued at times very briskly, from a little before eleven o'clock A. M. till a quarter past one P. M., when it ceased. With the glass, some two of three of the enemy's gun-boats could be seen, but the atmosphere being heavy, it was impossible to observe their movements or to form any satisfactory opinion of the fortune of the fight. After the firing had continued some time we observed what resembled an explosion of powder and soon after a heavy colum of smoke rose to a greater height, and continued to ascond until after the firing ceased, a little after one o'clock. It had been rumored in the city that one of the enemy's gun-boats was ashore not far from Wall's Cut, and that she had been attacked by the Carolina batteries. Some were of epinion the large colum of smoke proceeded from some plantation house which had been fired by the enemy, while others were of opinion that the disabled gunboat had been set on fire by the shot from our batteries, or by the enemy, to prevent her falling into our hands. The long continued and heavy firing was heard in all parts of the city, and various were the speculations in regard to the fight, while all felt the greatest anxiety to learn the result. The whole affair remained unexplained until about six o'clock in the evening, when a gentleman arrived we gather the following information: During the engagement which took place on Wednesday last, between Commodore TATTNALL's mosquito fleet and the enemy's gunboats in Freeborn's Creek and Wall's Cut, it is supposed that one of the gunboats was disabled, as she was towed away after the contest and put eight to ten miles from Savannah, in a of this letter, for I shall not be direct line.

in the city, from whom, and other sources,

General DRAYTON, on ascertaining the situation of the gunboat, sent a battery of the North Carolina artillery to the point, and also some heavy siege guns from the Red Bluff battery, to attack and, if possible, capture the gunboat. Our informant states on arriving at the point our troops found two other Federal gunboats in com pany with the disabled vessel, the enemy engaged in dismantling her. During the engagement which ensued, of the result of which our informant has no positive information, he thinks the enemy set fire to the disabled vessel to prevent her talling into our hands.

We hope to-day to obtain tull particulars of the affair, woich was not likely attended with serious consequences, as the firing was long continued, brisk and heavy.

CAMP BLOIS,

Monday, Feb. 3, 1862, Dear News: All well here at "Camp Blois ?' The enemy have been making demonstrations up the South Carolina creek and rivers this morning, but apparently with little success. The Washington correspondent of the New York Express, speaking of the war expense calculations of a cotemporary, says that the Tribune is not far out of the way, after all, in estimating the present ex-penditures of the Government at three millions per day, as follows : For Quartermaster's Departmeni of the army, two millions per day, as shown by Gen. Meigs report to the Secretary of War; for Paymaster, $718,000 per day; for Commissary military service alone of $2,999,000. The daily expenditures of the Navy De-000 per day, and of the other departments of the Government, say $100,000 per day, The aggregate, many think, is $3,139,600. as the daily expense of the United States Government, or an annual expenditure of

General's Department. $140,000 per day;

for Ordnance Department, $31,600 per day making a total for three departments of the

Well, if at such an extravagent rate of expenditure the Lincoln Administration does not soon find itself in the poor house, we shall be much mistaken. It is on the verge of vagrancy already, and if some good luck does not attend it, will speedily be regarded as "a dangerous and suspicious charace ter, without any visible means of support."

Canadian Feeling. The prevailing feeling in Canada which may be regarded as a faithful reflex of public sentiment in the Mother Country well set forth in the following extracts from a letter, written by a Northerner so journing in Cogburg, under date 27th December, and published in the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat, a strong Lincoln jour nal. It fully corroborates what has been learned from English and Canadian sources; and, as the writer is an enemy, his statements may be taken without many grains of salt. Here are the extracts :

Canada is still alive and full of fight .-Everything as regards the Slidell and Mason affair remains still in uncertainty us ; but I give you my opinion that this preparation for war in England was not on account of the Treat. Before that came up I heard that extraordinary preparations were making in England, and that by the close of navigation there would addition to the army in Canada. In the spring a large fleet was to be sent over. From what I can learn, England has for a long time intended to mile the blockade and take the cotton out. Then the intention was to seize Maine. For myself, I make no doubt this is their real intention. Orders were long ago given to organize the malitia, and many other preparations have been made. * *

My opinions are formed from what I am told by men in power and connected with the Government. To day the Colonel of this battalion informed me that the commander of the forces had given orders to draft 50,000 men from the first service men-that is unmarried men under 45and Mr. W- informed me that immense quantities of arms are daily going up the road. In fact, things are in such a aground in South May River, near Piney state that this is not the most desirable Island, where the Federals had landed place for an American. When you write some of their troops. This point is from to me, make no mention of the contents letters from the States. * * * * I hope your people are alive to the fact that the time has come to place the frontiers in a proper state of detense, for I feel sure that you will have use for all the patriotism that your country affords, and that before long. Rest assured that England is bound to pick a quarrel with the States. She wants the State of Maine.

We should not be surprised if there was a heap of truth in the foregoing. We feel quite confident of ft. England has never been satisfied with the settlement of the North-eastern boundary question, under the Ashburton treaty; and she may probably conclude that this is a first-rate time to vindicate her alleged rights and restore her boundaries in accordance therewith .-England is a sagacious nation, and seldom lets a good opportunity pass out of her hands. She has a good chance now-an opportunity that may not occur again in quarter of a century. Besides, ske wants the harbor of Portland as a winter haven for her ships. It would be of immense ad vantage to her to take and retain possession of the city of Portland and the railseveral gunboats were reconnoitering up South at that point. If this should be done we might congratulate a portion of the people of Maine on their being at last under the sway of a decent Government, although candour compels us to say that we could not congratulate the British cabi-net on such an acquisition of population! Still, as we wish good to all, and as we believe the Maineites would be benefitted, and the British would obtain a port almost indispensable to them, we trust the latter will step in and take possession. We of the South will not interpose the slightest

> As for raising the blockade and taking 'the cotton out," that is altogether a different affair. We have got pretty well used to the blockade are working our way through all the difficulties aplendidly and if foreign nations choose to break the blockade before we get ready to break it, well and good. It they don't, we shall not We can afford to wait as long for their trade as they can for our trade in fact, much longer. The rapid manner in which the development of home resources is going on will render us entirely self-austrining in less than twelve months.

Dispatches from Missouri.

Some private dispatches (says the Rich nond Examiner,) have been received here trom General Price, by members of the Missouri delegation. These dispatches contain the gratifying intelligence that the State troops are rapidly volunteering for the Confederate service The former difficulties in the way of their enlistment have been accommodated here, by the decision of the War Department to accept the troops under General Price's command, for a term of enlistment for twelve months. instead of for the war, as at first proposed. This exception in favour of the Missour troops does not compromise the rule of the War Department to arm only such troops as enlist for the war, as General Price's light, on his works he has written, 'None of us liveth to himself.' And probably were we wise enough to understand these works we should find there is nothing from the cold earth stone in earth or the minutest creatures that breathe—which may not in some way or other minister to the happiness of some living creature. We admire and preise the flower that best federate service.

LINGTON, the aged and well known Senior Editor and Proprietor of the Courier. He died quite suddenly, about two o'clock on Sunday morning, of a stroke of appoplexy experienced only a few hours previously

Mr. WILLINGTON was born in East Sad-

bury, Massachusetts, March 12, 1781, and had therefore nearly completed his 81st year. In early life he was apprenticed, as a printer, in the office of the Boston, Palladium, and there gained his first insight into the business in which he afterwards became so successful. In 1802, when Mr. LORING ANDREWS of Mussachusetts came to Charleston, with the view of publishing a daily newspaper here, Mr. WILLINGTON accompanied him in the capacity of foreman. Early in January of the following year, "The Charleston Courier" made its appearance, as "printed by A. S. Wit.-LINGTON for LORING ANDREWS." Thus. although not at first a proprietor, the deceased was identified, both in name and fact, with the Courier, from its original ssue, and remainder of his life was closely interwoven with its fortunes. Through all the early years of the existence of that journal, his industry and unflagging energy were mainly instrumental viving it support. In 1806, he became one of its proprietors, the style of the firm being then, "MARCHANT, WILLINGTON & Co." During the troublous times of 1812, the Courier espoused the cause of the Federal party, which bitterly opposed the war against Great Britain. In the days of Nullification, from 1828 to 1833, the Courier became the mouth piece of the Union party in its struggles with the then States Rights party; and again, in 1850-'52, when the policy of Sccession came to be earnestly urged upon the people of the State the Conrier was an organ of the "Cooperationists," as opposed to those in favor of "Separate State Action." In the midst, however of all these trying periods of political excitement, though party feeling ran high, Mr. WILLINGTON incorred no personal odium, even amongst those who most strenuously opposed the politics of his paper. Upon the election of President Lincoln, in 1860, all former party lines were, for the time, obliterated, and the South became an unit for resistance.-The deceased fully approved and advocated the final step. which separated the Southern from the Northern States of the Union. Mr. Willington was a man of close obmation. He was eminently upright in all his dealings, pure in his life, and feithful in the performance of all the duties of a good citizen. His excellent judgement and admirable business tacts are attested by the fact, that, in an avocation that rarely makes men rich, he had amassed an independent fortune. In charities of every kind, he bestowed his well-earned wealth with an natinging hand.

Mr. Willington had occupied, with abili y and efficiency, many honorable position.

—having served as Alderman, Member o the Legislature, and as director in Banks and Insurance Companies. In the declining years of his life his eyesight became seriously impaired, but, with characteristic industry, he maintained, to the last, as far as possible, those habits of close attention to business to which he had become inured. On the afternoon of the very day on which he was stricken down, he paid his usual visit to the Courier office.

Texas News, Bombardment of Velasco. The Houston Telegraph publishes a letter giving an account of the bombardment of Velasco, between two of the enemy's vessels and the Confederate batteries, on Sunday morning, 18th ult. It appears that a bark and schooner came along within range of the guns of the fort, when the gallant Texan boys let a round shot fly at them. The bark and schooner both replied first with shot and then with shell and well directed, and the latter all exploding over the town and some distance back of the battery. Result of the fight, 10, shots fired from the battery, the Confederates having the last shot, and 22 from the bark and schooner, with nobody hurt and no damage done on our side, and none known to have been done the enemy, though persons observing the fight - are quite certain both the vessels were struck.

A THOUSAND CHINAMEN DROWNED .- The California journals, in giving an account of the late disastrous floods with which they have been vinited, state that the Chinese have been very great sufferers. No less than forty-five Chinamen were carried away in their cabins at Orehon bar, in Placer county. The Chinese hougs in San Francisco have since received letters from the interior of the State to the effect that during the late freshet near one thousand Chinamen were washed off from Long Bar and vicinity on the Yula, and drowned. It appears that the poor fellows remained in their cabins on the bar, as they had done in previous floods, until the raging waters rose about them and rendered their escape

It is the old story, hitherto unhe telligence being conveyed to the enemy by mies and traitors. Within the General's own command there were as bitter mice as those who killed him. The men were loyal, while in Somerset there were indiciduals who were really the creatures of Brownlow and Lincoln.

Such are the fruits of too much leniency.

When will this policy be changed? All eyes are fixed upon the President. The people look to him for safety and success.

The admission of the Sumter into Cedis is, so far as it goes, a direct schow ment by Spain of the South as a he ent State.-It may be more than this There is considerable doubt Sumter should be regarded as a privateer Her commander holds a comm the Confederate Government. that this ship has been regularly sioned as a Confederate war sing. If this be so, and that the Spanish authorities are aware of the fact, the Sumter has been ad mitted into Cadiz harbor on the footing of a Confederate cruiser, the same way as a Federal war ship-the Iroquois, for example-would have been admitted to the hos pitalities of that port.

The hospitality extended to the South ern Commissioners while at Havana, the interest displayed by the people and the authorities of Port Royal, in Martinique, in the recent escape of the Sumter from under the guns of the Iroques, and the subsequent admission of the Sumter into Cadiz, show very clearly England is not the only country in when the Confederates have a recognized belligerent status, or where there is a determination not to ermit any interference with the admitted nghts of neutrals. If the Federal Government is wise, they will profit by the lesson which the event we have referred to teaches

It the Federal Consul at Cadit thinks it necessary to leave that port because a Confederate cruiser has been admitted, and that he does so with the sanction of his Government, we foresee that before long there will not be a Federal consul in any of the ports of Europe.

A Southern Enterprise. A very intelligent correspondent of the Atlanta, (Ga.) Confederacy, after describing Pensacola and its surroundings, alludes in these terms to an enterprise which has frequently received favorable mention in our columns :

Pensacola is an old town, situated on one of the noblest bays in the world. The streets, which are narrow and sandy, are regularly laid off, intersecting at right angles. There are no very costly dwellings or fine buildings. There is a toundry which turns out good work. The object of most interest to me is a factory for the manufacture of oil from rosin. The oil is taries, for tanning leather, and for gas besides other useful purposes. When in full operation, it consumes hav barrels of rosin per day, out of which is formed eight hundred gallons of oil. The gentleman who showed us the premium informed us that the oil could be sold at wholesale for $1 per gallon, and that the rosin is obtained from Alabama at %c. per barrel. The machinery is rather costly, but, if I am correctly informed the profit is great. I saw some specimens of the oil, and found it very good.

The Florida Oil Company, although se parate from the Southern oil company, is the direct fruit of that enterprise, and is destined to become, relatively; as useful and prosperous as its progenitor. Indeed, we understand that the latter Company, by regular arrangement, sells most of the products of the former, This agreement has proved mutually beneficial, and in two ways: In the first place, it has enabled the present company to supply a larger proportion of oils than it could otherwise have done, to meet the great demand that sprung up and which has been constantly increasing; and in the second place; the more the use of the oil is diffused the greater its popularity. Experience has demonstrated that the greater the sphere of its diffusion the heavier the demand for it. This is the best evidence of its value; and the fact is, when propely applied, it has shown itself to be the car-box oil in the country, and is afforded at about one third the price of similar oils. The future of these Companies is brilliant. They are destined not only to make large returns to their stockholders, but they will render the Confederates States independent of foreign supplies of an article of indispensable use -N. O. Crescent.

Mr. Edtior :- The correct answer to the question, "Why is General Jackson called Stone Wall Jackson," is contained in the last words of General Bee to his own command just before he fell from his horse mortally wounded. The Flag intimates that parties on this side of the Rio Grande are thought to be rather too intimate with him. He has been writing letters and sending messages to Seward about the propriety of sending troops to Brownsville. The editor remarks that "those persons this eide the river so very intimate with Consul Pierce, should, be zealously watched."
